Toronto, Canada - Wilmington, USA - Dublin, Ireland. Syncordia Technologies and Healthcare Solutions, Inc. (“Syncordia”) completes the acquisition of Health Services Integration Inc. (“HSI”)

Syncordia has acquired HSI of Santa Rosa, CA, an emergency medical services (“EMS”) revenue cycle management (“RCM”) company with cutting edge proprietary technology designed to maximize all aspects of the revenue cycle.

About HSI

HSI is a technology enhanced claims management company utilizing proprietary technology to improve claim workflow, production management, and actionable data transparency. Since its inception over a decade ago, HSI has demonstrated a consistent level of innovation and growth. Michael Franks, Syncordia’s CEO, says “The decision to acquire HSI aligns with Syncordia’s vision of becoming a world class technology enabled RCM company utilizing a proprietary suite of software applications and workflows to provide best in class solutions.”

Realizing a gap in efficiencies in the EMS transportation medical billing process, HSI developed leading edge medical billing technology to enable a highly efficient billing process. The technology developed by HSI automates and speeds up claims processing and provides analytics for deeper insight to fine tune the RCM process. www.hsihealth.com

About Syncordia

Syncordia has operations in North America and Europe, and is focused on investing in, partnering with and growing RCM companies where proprietary technology can be used as an accelerator. Syncordia addresses a great void in niche healthcare sectors, such as EMS and behavioral health, where the necessary workflow/production/analytic components are largely absent or inadequate for a RCM company to maintain quality with scale. Syncordia is actively acquiring medical billing companies and is building a proprietary suite of RCM software solutions called the Syncordia Cloud, which includes patient scheduling, electronic health records, claims management, analytics and more. Syncordia's ability to not only offer but control the entire product offering of both software and solutions uniquely positions the company to be able to deliver a refreshingly simple and powerful product offering that's largely absent in healthcare today. Led by a team of executives with extensive experience in RCM and technology, acquisition opportunities are carefully selected to become part of the Syncordia family and enable Syncordia's vision of becoming a world class technology enhanced RCM Company with best in class solutions.
